You want Yogurt! We are looking into various options and value your input as we make a decision regarding what type of yogurt to carry in 2012.

Dear Friends,

2012 is here at last, and football excitement is in the air! Nothing is better than football parties, except maybe the "super" food we enjoy eating!

This issue of the MOOO News contains a great recipe using our Longmont Dairy Select Asiago Cheese. Be sure to make a double batch, as it will probably disappear faster than the chips you serve it with! We have also put together a few more recipes using our new cheeses, so be sure to check our website for recipes: www.MooNews.com.

Your responses to our 2011 Survey were really great. Thanks to all of you for taking the time to respond. We will be sharing some of your feedback in the next few issues of the MOOO News. We are always open to new ideas and while we are not always able to implement every good idea that comes our way, we always consider them.

Best wishes for a very happy New Year!

Take care 'til next time,

Susan Boyd

Remember the whipped cream.

Hot chocolate just isn't the same without it, and LDF whipping cream makes it even better.

Cold Weather Milk Tips

- Bring milk in as soon as possible.
- Keep the cooler close to the house.
- Leave a rug or blanket next to the cooler and we will wrap it up for you.

If your milk freezes—If the bottle is not broken, the milk can be thawed at room temperature. Unseal the cap and place the bottle in the sink, in case it leaks or spills. "Thawed" milk is perfectly safe to drink. Return the bottles to the refrigerator as soon as possible, after danger of leakage passes.
